According to the common definition, graft is high finance on a small scale.

she has learned to stab pickles with a

Wise is the young man who doesn't bave his flancee's name engraved in the ring.

Opinions should be formed with great caution and changed with still greater caution.

Surely there must be some way to prevent rallroad accidents. Isn't it time for an improvement? The asbestos curtains in use need not be thrown away. Cut into small bundles, they might be used in kindling in fires. After all there is no patent break-eggs and buckwheat cakes, although some are more extensively advertised. The average Russian peasant has a vocabulary of only 110 words. It is surprising that a man can sneeze or clear his throat in 110 different ways. President Palma has vetoed Cuba's lottery bill. It looks very much as if Cuba's first President might make a record for his descendants to be proud

Spain has declined to make an exhibit at the St. Louis World's Fair be cause she does not like this country, and for the further reason that she has not the price. The minister to Korea complains because his silk hat touches the caves of the_legation building when he stands on the steps. Evidently what the minister needs is an opera bat.

An Arizona man committed suicide n few days ago because he couldn't get his salary raised from $9,000 to $12,000 a year. We know quite a lot of people who would be willing to take $9,000 a year each and live even in-Arizona.

There is consternation among government clerks at Washington because they will in future be required to work seven hours a day, with only two months' leave on full pay per annum. As a taskmaster Uncle Sam is getting to be just too horrid for anything.

The roof of the cathedral at Toledo -in Spain, not Ohio-fell recently. and hasty work by a speculative contractor, but to old age. The building was begun in the thirteenth century. and was not finished for two hundred and sixty-five years, in the year America was discovered.

Surely it is wise for the giver to look a gift horse in the mouth. A western Congressman's wife made an appeal to her neighbors in Washington on behalf of her minister at home, who had asked her for winter clothes; the poor people of the cold northwestern parish were suffering. One warm-hearted The woman who is worth having is Washington lady sent a bundle the next day. It contained two beautiful silk petticoats, a pink chiffon theater typist, and a tan-colored riding habit,

War has its episodes no less roman tic than those of peace, as a senti mental Milton might have said. One of them is disclosed in the search of a Cuban soldier for the American nurse who cared for him in the hospital at Santiago. She would not give her name to him, but told him that he would hear from her after the war. He has been waiting for word from her, and is now in this country, searching. with nothing to aid him save her photograph and the knowledge that her Yamily objected to her service as an army nurse.

We hear of rural counties charged with the cost of keeping a considerable number of vagrants who are not even the poor of those sections. They are able bodied, they go there to be supported for the winter, and yet no one has enterprise enough to suggest the obvious course of making them work while they are living at the pub-He expense. Nothing would be easier than to provide them with work if there was active and efficient administration. They could be made to saw wood, shovel snow, clean streets or a dozen other things. It is a perfectly safe assertion that if such work were provided the tramps would speedily find other places to spend the winter.

The settlement of the troublesome question of the friars' lands in the Philippines gives to the United States the title to nearly all of the real property of the religious orders in the isl ands. In return, the United States pays the friars seven and a quarter million dollars. The work of the church, and, indeed, of the religious associations, will go on as before, so far as the spiritual and social side of it is concerned; but the orders cease to be landlords. The government, on the other hand, acquires an opportunity of great value. The possession of four hundred thousand acres of the richest and most valuable land in the islands gives the means to carry out the plan of estab-Hahing a class of small landowners, secure in their possession and devoted to the maintenance and development of American principles,

"Nowadays we read too much, as we eat too much; the memory, like the digestion, is weakened by surfeit." These words are taken from a recent ography of Whittier. The author shows how meager in quantity was the intellectual diet of the poet in boyhood. The Bible, "Pilgrim's Progress," and a few of the columes which formed the Quaker illerary of his parents boyhood which produced such men as Whittier and those in which the youth of our day are nurtured is frequently pointed out-to the disadvantage of the present. It is the fashion to bewall the multiplication of books and magazines. Because one person or another tries to read them all and fails. or meets with that success which turns his mind into a scrap-bag riddled with holes, it is argued that modern conditions are all wrong, and that "civilization' should turn back to earlier ways. It is a plausible cry, but is it A schoolgirl never graduates until quite convincing? The world is full of a number of things which did not exist a hundred years ago. Moreover, its population has enormously increasedwhich is to say that where there was formerly one boy or girl looking for knowledge, there are now hundreds of similar seekers. Therefore the agencies of knowledge have inevitably bewilderingly increased. But must the individual inevitably be bewildered? That there is no more of a cat than its skin is a homely statement of unchanging truth. The human mind is still the human minl. Not even a Bacon can presume in our days to take all knowledge for his province. Out of every thousand printed pages there may possibly be one or two for any given person. The teacher-of another and of himself-must learn to discriminate. The wise man will rejoice in fast food that is better than bacon and every new road to learning, but, after treading the few paths proved the best by the wisdom of the ages, will enter those new roads only which are meant for him.

A youth and a girl were married not long ago. They promised to love. cherish and obey-all the things that are a part of a regular marriage service, and mean much or little, as the case may be. The man and woman were strangers. They met on the day of their marriage. The courtship was a matter of correspondence, and the correspondence was the sequel to wager made by the youth with his college chum. Why will men and women trifle with matrimony? They wouldn't invest $100 in a gold watch without a thorough investigation. They would ask for a guarantee. They would be certain that what looked like gold was not brass. They would consult an expert. They would be sure that the timepiece was a real bargain. And yes a man will wed a woman of whom he knows no more than that her face is pleasing, her figure well molded. Very often he is sorry. Very often the home becomes a section of hades. There is vituperation and scolding; nagging that drives a weak man to drink; and love--why. husband and wife discover that there never was any love, even in the beginning. And it is worse for the woman. When she marries she burns her bridges behind her. She gives her future to a man. She is helpless. She is entitled to consideration, tender affection, sympathy, thorough understanding. You see she gives up much more than a man has to give when she marries. What chance has she when she weds a stranger? Surely an alliance for life is of more importance than the purchase of a watch, or a horse, or a dog, or any material thing. And when you read of a sudden mar riage in which romance and folly are mixed, you wonder about the parents; why they couldn't care enough about their girl to warn her, advise her, prevent her from taking a step that spells ruln nine times in ten. The man who is entitled to a good wife should be man enough to open the doors of his life and court inspection. also worth winning in the old-fashion ed way. It takes time, and it makes happiness.

The Vernacular.

This was the conversation between the girl with the gum in her mouth and the other girl with the gum in her mouth: "Aincha hungry?" "Yeh."

"So my. Less go neet."

"Where?" "Sleev go one places nuther."

'So dy, Ika neet mo stennyware. Canchoo?"

"Yeh. Gotcher money?" "Yeh?"

"So vy. Gotcher aptite?"

"Yeh. Gotchoors?" "Yeh. Howbout place crosstreet?"

"Nothin' teet there. Lessgurround corner."

"Thattledoo zwell zennyware. Mighta thoughta tha't first. Getcher hat." "Ima gettinit. Gotcher money?"

"Yeh. Didn'cheer me say I had it' Allready?"

"K'mon."

Making German Toys.

More than 50,000 people find employment in the manufacture of German toys, the annual output for export being valued at more than $13,000,000. The manufacturing industry has centered chiefly in Nuremberg and Sonneberg and the surrounding hamlets, The manufacture of toys has become Important as a domestic or house industry among the people of many small villages. Each city has its specialty, and never figures as a rival to another district. The products of Nuremberg ire principally of metal- tin soldiers, swords, railway traits, fleets, models of machinery and other toys for boys while Sonneberg uses almost exclusively wood, porcelain, glass and paper n the production of toys best suited to girls.

How Could It Be a Mistake? What a woman doesn't know about ewspapers isn't worth knowing. The other morning Mrs. B. was talking to her husband.

"I notice in the Daily Hoodoo that Mr. Biffkins died on Sunday." "It's a mistake, my dear," replied the husband. "He died on Monday."

"But the paper said Sunday."

"I know it, but it was an error in the print." "I thought so, too, at first, but got haif a dozen copies of the paper, and it was the same in all of them.

They certainly couldn't have made the mistake over and over again." The husband tried to convince her, but it was no use, and he gave it up.

Any man who smiles when he pays

Opinions of Great Papers on Important Subjects.

Matrimony and Dyspeps a. is not good for man or woman to eat alone. Thus medical authority has spoken for years. The solitary diner out, having no company before him, other than his food, swallows it improperly masticated, hurries one course upon another before the stomach can properly adjust itself to the conditions that tax it, and acquires a dyspepsia that distress him severely and makes life a blue

The increase in dyspepsia and kindred ailments, so on who has been gathering information asserts, is largely due to the independence manifested by both sexes regarding matrimony. In other words, were there fewer bachelors and bachelor maidens there would be less demand for tonles to brace up an impaired digestion.

In splte of the orthodox joke about the young wife ruining her husband's digestive apparatus by her attempts at cookery, it is established that there are, in reality, much fewer cases of dyspepsia among the wedded than among those who choose to remain single,

Food consumption should be a task of slow process and the mind should be free from care and unnecessary ex eltement during the meal hour. This is best established when two persons dine together and enjoy such good-natured chaff, raillery or interesting chat as diverts them for

A few are so gifted as to be able to dine alone and dine deliberately by the amusement derived from their surroundings, but the rule is, 'as the restaurant-keepers can well testify to, that the single diner cats his meal in from one-third to one-half the time taken by those who dine is The inference, of course, established by this research is that matrimony is a good thing for dyspepsia, and possibly this fact may establish a new line of thought in some crusty bachelors and fussy bachelor maidens, who are unable to eat a meal without topping it off with a few specially prepared tablets and nostrums to help out their poor stomachs.-New York Telegram.

Farming a Great Industry.

HE annual report of the Secretary of Agriculture shows that farming is still the chief busias our other industries have grown, especially within recent years, agriculture still far surpasses any of them in the amount of its cap-number of people engaged in it. Wilson shows that the balance of trade in all products ex- vention or cure.—Boston Herald. cept those of agriculture ran against us $865,000,000 during the last fourteen years. The balance of trade in agricultural products was $4,806,000,000 in our favor, however, so that the total balance in our favor, thanks to the farmer, was $3,940,000,000. While we have not been able to turn out or, at least, have not turned out-enough of other commodities to supply our wants, we have raised enough farm produce not only to meet our own demands, but to feed a large part of the rest of the world; and the agriultural lands of the country still possess large resources that never have been exploited. In the couse of time the country's industrial population no doubt will become so great as to consume all the food that the land can be forced to produce.- Kansas City Journal.

English as the World's Language.

utilized.

the ent-block

tnak.

matic tongue, the language to be observed in international courts and in the interchange of communications between Germany, and the United States.

The growth of the United States as a world power has substitute. Buffalo Commercial.

BATTLING WITH AN ANCHOR.

~~~~~~

anchor to the deck of the ship the hundred-pound cut-block had to be fastened by the huge hook which de pended from it to the ring in the balancing band on the anchor shank so that the power of the winch could be

The great anchor hung so that when the wave receded it was clear of the water, but each incoming crest submerged it several feet. As the ship tossed on the waves there was great danger that the enormous weight of the anchor would send the anchor float, and to swing that anchor back and forth like the pendulum of a toy clock, it was no child's game to hook specimen of the American sallor, Just under the arms of each a line was made fast, and men on deck stood

The two sailors watched their chance, and, when the ship's head was well out of water, over they went.

They had hardly reached the anchor

when a wave rolled in that surged four feet above their heads. When it passed both were clinging, almost breathless, to the shank of the an-

But the instant they were clear of water they jumped to their work and strove to get the block in place. With the ship hauling one way and the wind blowing another there was small chance for them to drag that hundred-and again they had it almost fast-

Still the two men struggled at their ready to haul away in case of need.

putes that may arise in the Pacific. She has her interests in China, by reason of the united action of the Powers during the Boxer revolt, and her position as arbitrator and peace preserver in South America has become more pronounced with the development of that continent and its American continent. Russia, it is true, has a larger popupean countries. More people speak the Euglish language than use any other tongue spoken in Europe or on the American continent: Russia, it is true, has a larger population than the United States and Great Britain combined but millions of her citizens do not speak the Russian language. Aside from other considerations, there is a force and directness to plain English that are not found in any other tongue, and international relations are now such that plain, direct, concise terms are needed to avoid complications. The adoption of English as the diplomatic language is but a natural step in the right direction.-Wash Ington Post, How We Catch Colds. HE London Hospital, a medical magazine, making English the universal language than any othe.

cause. This nation is now an interested party in any dis undoubtedly had a greater influence, fection by persons who have a cold, lest they "catch" it. The old notion that a cold is result of exposure to draught or to cold air, or of getting the feet wet, has been abandoned, although it is true that one may get a chill in that way which will afford some of the symptoms and sensations of the nasal catarrh caused by a noxious germ. It is safer to avoid close contact, and all unnecessary contact, with a person who has this cold. A horse that has been wintered out often catches a cold upon being brought into the stable in the spring. Experiments with disinfectants have shown that it is not the warmth of the stable that induces the cold. Arctic voyagers are commonly free of colds until their return to a community where they preness of the people of the United States. Fast vail. In the small rocky island of St. Kilda, one of the Western Hebrides, Scotland, colds are unknown except when it is visited by some vessel, and it is said that the inhabitants can distinguish between the different kinds ital, in the value of its products and in the of colds brought by different ships. There is much similar evidence relating to the subject, and the Hospital declares We have been boasting of the rapidity with which our that "some source of infection must be present before it exports of manufactured goods have increased, of our is possible to catch cold." What appears to be needed is 'conquests of the markets of the world," but Secretary a specific germleide which may be used either for pre-

Fuel from the Marshes.

series of experiments has lately been conducted under the auspices of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, into the fuel value of marsh mud. Now the announcement is made that this material contains the elements of coal to an equal if not greater amount than peat. The fact is well known that the mud bogs of Holland, of some parts of Germany, and yet more of Russia, are being worked commercially on an extensive scale for the supply of what is in fact artificial coal, resembling it in appearance, in specific gravity, in heat units and in effective service. In this country, Mr. Edward Atkinson says, we may be justified in considering it proved that New England and many other sections, distant from HERE is a significance, more important and coal mines, are in possession of material that can be confar reaching than appears on the surface, in the verted into domestic fuel at lower cost than any coal can announcement that the English language is to be secured, and in many respects of better quality for be the medium employed in the arbitration of cooking and other domestic purposes. It is also available the Venezuelan dispute at The Hague court. It for gas production; also for conversion into coke at lower has so long been the custom, still very generally cost and of purer quality than any other fuel that can be in vogue, for such exchanges to be carried on in obtained in New England. Mr. Atkinson considers the French that French has become recognized as the diplo- secret of conversion to be solved; and he also asks this question: 'May it not be possible that the Irish peasants who have been converting the turf of their hill slopes into nations. The first radical departure from this rule was in domestic fuel for generations have taught the scientists a 1889, when English was used in the international parlia- lesson in heat and power which they had wholly overment that settled the Samoan dispute between England, looked?" As long as New England cannot have natural gas, she may find "mud coal" from the marshes a good

***************************** and knocked him ten feet from the an- package contained double that amount.

chor into the sea. The rush of an incoming wave swept him away from the ship, and for a mo-********** ment it seemed as if he would surely be lost. Then was justified the wis-To hoist to the cat-head an anchor dom which had placed the line about weighing eight thousand pounds, with his shoulders. The men on deck drew a gale of wind blowing and a tremenhim in, unconscious but safe, and in dous sea rising, is a difficult task ten minutes he was declaring to the The New York Sun tells how this officer in charge that be could surely work was undertaken on a warship in hook that block next time. Hampton Roads. In order to raise the

But the captain had formed another plan. He determined to haul up the anchor as far as was possible, so that it should have the smallest room for play, and to make harbor. Just at nightfall she reached quiet waters. But he does not always grasp the enand once more the unruly anchor was iet go ngain.

WAS THIS MAN HONORABLE?

Tried to Beat an Express Company, but Lost by the Transaction.

Now that the Mary and Ann problem has been disposed of let me tell through her thin plating. But with of an actual case which came within seas big enough to toss the ship about | my knowledge several years ago, says as easily as if she were a fishing- the Brooklyn Eagle. These were the facts: A wealthy and close-fisted banker in a certain Illinois city was accustomed to sending currency by express to his correspondent bank in Chica-Two men were chosen, each a fine go. Somehow the express agent got a suspleion that the banker was saving expressage by sending larger sums than he pretended, so one day when the banker brought in a package which to his wife, Angelo commanded, he said contained $5,000 the agent gave him a receipt as usual for that amount, and later in his private office opened the package and found that it contained $10,000. Without saying a word to anybody the agent hid the package away to his safe and awaited developments. In a few days the banker came in to say that the Chicago bank had not. Me no paya de dell'; me diga de pole > ecceived the package. "Very well," said the agent. "I will send out a tracer for it.'

A few days later he told the banker that the package must have been lost in transit, so he counted out $5,000 and pound block in still a third way, Again | handed it over to him.

Now, the agent fully expected the ened, when a great wave knocked it banker to object to a settlement on a away and buried them far out of sight. $5,000 basis and was prepared to tell him that when he paid double expressage on all the packages he had sent Then the inevitable happened. The in the past the remainder of the $10,000 great cat-block swung far out as the would be returned to him. But the ship plunged forward, nung posters instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant, as if taking deliberate aim, rather than contess in the instant aim of the instant ai

Up to this time the agent had acted faithfully in the interest of his company, but now a question arose in his mind as to who rightfully owns the remaining $5,000.

Never mind what he actually did with it. The question is, dear reader, what would you have done with it, and why?

A Slight Misconception.

Under the subtle influence of the New World the foreigner becomes a good citizen, willing to do his duty by town and State, and to extend it in time of need to his adopted country. tire political scheme. Angelo, a newly naturalized Italian citizen, lived, says the Brooklyn Eagle, in one of a row of neat little cottages built by a man of philanthropic nature in a factory town. The cottages had pretty front yards hat faced on a street as nicely kept as a parkway. Before each gate was an ornamental hitching post. One evening, when on a rent-collecting tour, the shilanthropic landlord found one of the posts form up and thrown into the street. Angelo lived in the house to which the post belonged. "Angelo," said the landlord, "how ome that post to be form up? "Me tearn him up." Angelo an swered. "Me no wanta de pole. He costs too mucha mon." And turning

'Bringa de little pape.' Obedient Mrs. Augelo brought the paper, which furned out to be a poll tax notice.

"Looka disa," sald Angelo, passing he notice to his landlord. "Dey maka me pay de doll' fur de pole. De pole he no good to me-me have no horse up and t'row him away."

Why He Called Her Peggy. I thought your wife's name was Elisabeth.

"No It is." "Then why do you call her Peggy?" "Short for Pegasa."

"Why. Pegasa is feminine for Pe-"Well, Pegasus is an immortal steed.

"What of that?" "Sh! Not so loud. She's in the next You see, an immortal steed is an everlasting mag, and there you are." It tukes a lot-of cald cash to mait low pun. LOVE'S SP

My heart was winte I heard you sing: O voice of Love, hus My life with Sprin

My hopes were homel I saw your eyes: O smile of Love, close To paradise!

My dreams were bitte I found them bliss: O lips of Love, give n Your rose to kiss!

Springtide of love! The Is ours alone: O heart of Love, at last you Against my own!

Century

iis step toward 非軍用軍軍軍軍軍軍軍軍軍軍軍軍軍軍軍

THE HUMBLED PRIMA DONNA

~=0=-

HE prima donna opened her forlorn little station beside the track.

lear?" And she read:

ulent charms-

and sighed heavily. "How hideous, from the window, the daily and nightly grind, and then about one's figure! Chum!"

"Well?"

"I shall never marry." "I have heard you say you were done with youthful follies.

fession, but if I were inclined to make so new he is not even named? t fool of myself. I should do it to advantage, and annex a nice bald-head- ette. ed, coupon-cutting bondholder who should spend most of his time at his by her sofa, and she looked from one club. I could never marry a penniless to the other wisely. young enthusiast with hopeless ideals for me to strain up to-"A young surgical person, for in- the performances?" stance, who devoted all his energies to amputating the limbs of the indi- and we get along very indifferently gent without money and without indeed without you." price," put in the girl innocently. "Certainly not. By the way, who was at the supper to-night?"

Ramisay.

"And the doctor?" "The doctor was telephoned for-an more pain?"

THE PRIMA DONNA READ HER LETTERS. prima donna's voice sounded cold. "I am too ill to see anyone this morning," all." she added, and gave herself up to the ostentations reading of a political ical?" leader.

The breakfast tray was brought in and the girl busled herself with the read her letters. Over one she mused a long time.

"Chum, I ought to go see Fleurette. I promised, you know. Do you his hands. remember how she cried that morning they took her away? One goes out on an absurd train which leaves at noon " She looked up vaguely at the clock own joy. on the mantel. "And one gets off at an impossible station and walks a Fleurette the gruel, which as mere mile, more or less, to the farmhouse. Dear me! Really, I am too good natured. I shall not go to-day. I am sure it is wretched out, and I shall unhygienically, licked her cheek and take cold or something and hurt my then the porridge bowl. By and by volce."

She placed her tapering fingers on with her thin little hand. her beautiful throat and essayed a It ended in a croak, at which she shook her head mournfully and To hear you sing it once again, glanced at the girl; but the girl was ma'am'selle, what happiness!" writing a letter, and her back refused sympathy, so the prima donna sing, at first very softly. The notes of presently arose and found refuge in Marguerite's plaintive ballad fell clear the compensations of the toilet. This and sweet upon the twilight. process was not completed before a round red eye of the stove glowed. bell boy brought up a card.

lessiv. I'll just do down and make your ex- way to listen. cuses.

The prima donna flushed, "Ask kilm | The girl at home replenished to wait. On the second thought, I are and lit the gas. A moment aft. will go down myself."

The young man, who had been looking out of the parlor window, turned imfastened her coat. Her friend was quickly as he heard a light step. "How penting and were an April face, and s the throat tids morning? Surely the girl sucidently exclaimed: you are not going out on such a day?" "I am going to the wilderness to see a poor child who is ili."

The doctor frowned. "Why not soul! grapes and oranges?" "The child loves me," said the prima donna. "I cannot send grapes and donna dimpled and smiled and wept oranges. I must go myself." "Very well. I'll call a cab. As your accompany you.

a white and yellow puppy, which a crying in sympathy. - New York man on the curbstone happened to of News. fer to the prima donna at a ridiculously low price. She enddled it in her arms and talked foolishly to it all the way to the station.

The train rumbled along slowly, making frequent stops. The prima donna sat on a distressing plush seat beside a corpulent woman with a market basket, and gazed out at dreary suburbs. The doctor sat in the baggage car and held the white and yel eyes to the gray light of a The road ran south from the plat-November morning. Her first form, skirting the edge of a mysterisense was one of deep gratitude that ous brown wood, and losing itself over her alternate was to sing that evening. the top of a hill. The prima donna and she lay luxuriantly in the thought led the way with the air of an inuntil a girl came in from an adjoin- trepid explorer. Her fine eyes brighting room with the morning newspa-ened, an unwonted color flushed her cheek, and she made naive remarks "Let in a little more light, will you, about the scenery. They passed through a field where the whitening The sumptuous diva looked queenly, stalks floated pennons and the ground and was at her best vocally. Her op- was silvery with stubble, and reached the farmhouse, where a child's pale The prima donna crushed the paper little triangle of a face peered eagerly

"She will surely come." Fleurette reporters writing impertinent things had said. "She will come. You do not know my ma'm'selle. She never forgets. She will come!"

"Fleurette! Fleurette, It is I, your own ma'm'selle. And here is a gentleman who is dying to make your "I am wedded to my thankless pro- acquaintance, and a beautiful puppy,

The prima donna and the doctor sat

"I knew you'd come!" said Fleur-

"Do you miss me, ma'am'selle? How do you get along without me at "Yes, yes; I miss you, Fleurette:

"Listen. They are kind to me here -kind. But I cannot love them as I love you and Chum and Mme. Bar-"Oh, Mme. Bartoli, Claude, and toll. I miss you so that I lie awake in the night to cry. Do you think I shall get well soon? And have no

"I am sure of it," said the prima donna smilingly. "And may I return and not be lonely any more, but very happy?" "Not be lonely any more, but very sappy." repeated the prima donna, still smiling, but biting her lip. Later they were in the kitchen. The prima donna was making gruel, and the doctor was making love. She had a brown gingham apron about her waist, and also the doctor's arm. She gazed into the saucepan, sighed deeply, and stirred the meal and water.

"Can nothing be done?" she asked. "Perhaps. I will consult with a specialist, but-I have never seen you like this before, dearest!"

"This is not my real self. I am masquerading in a new role, that is "Why would you appear to be eyn-

Conscious that she was not pretty when she really cried, the prima donna tried to wink back her tears, but coffee service while the prima donna unsuccessfully, and was reduced to wiping her eyes with the apron. "I love you," said the doctor. He > was so strong she felt like a child in "How sad life is!" she murmured, her head against his breast, and she wept-a little at the sorry pageant of humanity, and a good deal for her They then went back and gave gruel was not a success. Not that Fleurette cared. She was engrossed with the puppy, who, irresistibly if she was humming and beating time

"To see you as Marguerite-C'era un re di Thule - Smiling at her, the diva began to upon the little group about the child's "It is the doctor," said the girl care- sofa, and the shadowy, moriotiess "But as you are feeling so ili, forms that and gathered in the > ward she heard the prima donna the door. She went to meet her at

> "Darling! Not really?" "He is so strong-and dear. Of course I'm a fool, and it's all preposterous and remantle and Arcadian, and too good to be true in this worklng day world; but-" And the prima ngnin. "Since you are bent on making a medical adviser, I must beg leave to fool of yourself, you could do it to much better advantage, you know," They bought fruit and violets and the girl reminded her, laughing and

> An Irreparable Loss. "Have you heard the latest? Brown's wife has run off with his > "Mercy, what a pity! He was such a good chauffeur! Brown will never be able to replace him."-Smart Set. A woman cares not where a man > hails from if she is permitted to reign, Many a man who claims do chauffeur."